"STONE SCHOOL"

Near East Troy, Waukesha County, Wisconsin

County School Commission (Owner)

Erection - 1850

Architect - None

Builder - Unknown

The present condition of the building is excellent and stands on its original foundation. It is one story in height.

The foundation walls and exterior walls are of stone quarried near by. The roof and cupola are of wood.

This structure was included in the survey because it is typical of the school houses of yesterday, which are fast disappearing. Although it must be said that the way this one is constructed, it will last for many years to come. The little red school house is practically unknown in Wisconsin. The first school houses were mostly of stone construction of which this is a typical example. It is truly a heritage of another day.

The above information was gathered from the County School records and from a personal inspection of the building.
